The Menu of Teriking from Seattle contains about 10 different dishes and drinks. On average, you pay for a dish / drink about $9.2. What User likes about Teriking:

I've been going to this place for over ten years. It used to be called Teriyaki Bowl but changed hands early during the pandemic. Things started to change slowly. The presentation/ packaging became fancier and the prices increased a little. Things got worse. About a year or so ago, every time I ordered here the food was terrible. Super dry, sometimes burnt. Rice smelled and tasted off. Veggies seemed precooked, lefto... read more. What

User doesn't like about Teriking:

Poor food and poor service. I got some teriyaki chicken from this place and it was a big mistake. The portion size is abysmal, and the chicken itself tastes like burnt cardboard. They give you the skimpiest portion of chicken, and each piece of chicken is so small and cut so thinly that each one is burnt and dry. The lady that served us was also very rude. Pretty much every other teriyaki place I've been to in Seattle... read more. In the Teriking from Seattle, using a lot of fresh vegetables, fish and meat, easy-to-digest, tasty Japanese meals are prepared,

Besides, the successful blend of different dishes with new and sometimes adventurous ingredients is appreciated by the visitors - a good case of Asian Fusion. Korean dishes like Kimchi, Bap and Jjigae, which are traditional, always find their way onto the menu and the tables of the guests, On the daily specials there are also several Asian menus.
