3 Margaritas seems to be a local chain and I have a location near me and have popped in a few times now for lunch. The thing I like most about the location near me is the colorful chairs and dining sets and the overall decoration. Staff has always been very pleasant. The food is where the stars drop. Mediocre and 'just ok', I have yet to find a decent place that makes me go wow over their fare presented. Prices for everything have gone up and I am more picky than ever to spend my dollars right nowadays. I have tried different dishes from the menu, from flautas to seafood enchiladas to stuffed sopapillas and chili rellenos. And while the staff is eager to help me out with my cilantro allergy, the food just isn't that great enough to warrant frequent visits. The restaurant also offers its visitors a catering service, Particularly, many guests are looking forward to the diverse, delectable Mexican cuisine. Furthermore, they serve you fine seafood menus, Spanish cuisines with their tasty savory sauces and spices are popular among the visitors.
