What User likes about Villa Y Zapata: The food was great, the margarita not so much typical sugary mix. Too bad they don't make their own Lime juice and simple syrup with real lime. We haven't been here in awhile and the place is run down and could use some primping, but the food was tasty and plentiful. I enjoyed the beef chimichanga with rice and beans and thoroughly enjoyed it at the restaurant and the next night reheated. My spouse had cheese enchila... read more. What User doesn't like about Villa Y Zapata:

Although somewhat obscure, it was recommended to us by a local familiar with the place. The environment was OK, nothing special, good service, but waiter did not know a word of Spanish. As for the food, we ordered fajitas, which were passable, but nothing exceptional. Prices were average for the meal though. Overall, a somewhat disappointing experience. read more. The catering service is also provided by the restaurant for its customers, Especially fine juices are very popular among the guests. Look forward to the enjoyment of scrumptious vegetarian menus, Many customers are especially looking forward to the diverse, tasty Mexican cuisine.
