What User likes about The Breakfast Club:

Average American diner food. I prefer the side potatoes to come seasoned. They went the extra mile to get me a blueberry muffin from the freezer for a grilled muffin. My scrambled eggs were perfectly cooked. I appreciate the stellar staff, organic eggs and watching the fresh squeezed orange juice machine was fantastic. They have several eggs Benedict options! The atmosphere of this diner screams small old town charm... read more. What

User doesn't like about The Breakfast Club:

Bland food. Not a lick of seasoning in anything. It felt like an Old folks home meal. I was taken aback on how the "home fries" were almost raw. I asked for a more cooked side of "home fries" and I received a plate of the same exact thing. I gave almost half my food back no one even questioned why. Ordered the basket case and the only thing I ate fully was the Belgium waffle and the chicken sausage. Nothing that need... read more.
