If we didn't leave this morning, we would definitely go back. we're late. I ordered kung pow chicken to dinner last night. service was fast, portions were very generous. the kung pow was made right. not dry, do not swim in sauce, and not watery. if they do not like spicy, they can ask if they can easily go to the paprika. but it was just right for me. server was very friendly. when he found out we were in a hotel, he... dreadful eating. we had one exited, as Eric said, there was no dive, even though it was empty. it took only 5 minutes to cook and we were somewhat suspicious. we ordered bark w/broccoli and 2 species of fried rice. the chicken and the meat were gummy and the rice was rough. I have never finished a Chinese food dish. today was the first day. we will not return. the cost was $46 for three meals.
