I used to be open before I had to go to the port, which was good, as many other places were closed. The staff was friendly, the coffee remained flowing and the food decent. There were a number of locals in there before they get to work, so that is always a good measurement of a place when they have consistent locals! read more.

What User doesn't like about Pitt Grill Lake Charles:

This was the first restaurant I tried in Lake Charles. At first glance of the building, I thought it was shut down because there's damage to the name on the building and the parking lot was completely empty on a Saturday at 6 PM. The inside was very clean though and smelled like fresh paint. The lady up front wasn't very hospitable. I had the Bubba Poboy and chicken sausage gumbo. The fries were very bland (it's impr...
