The restaurant had a mixed bag of reviews, with some diners raving about the creative and delicious food, while others were disappointed in the lack of vegetarian options or excessive use of goat cheese. The service received high marks from most, although some felt it could have been more attentive. The ambience was a point of contention, with one section of the restaurant receiving complaints for being out of place compared to the modern and cool vibe of the main dining room. Overall, the food was described as excellent, with standout dishes like the wagyu beef and tempura lobster. Although it may not be a standout among the plethora of great dining options in Las Vegas, the Christmas decorations, cozy atmosphere, and excellent service did leave a positive impression on many diners.
